CAESAR UP TO DATE

Including Many Things That Are Away Out of Date

CONCERNING HIS ASSASSINATION,

And the Causes That Led to His Sandbagging in the Capitol-Ills Career as a Base Ball Umpire and a Patron of the Island Ferry Boat-A Graphic Account of the Homan Sensation Taken From a Well Preserved Copy of the Herculaneum "Hurry Up," Recently Found Among the Papers of an Old Citizen of Wheeling, Long Since Deceased. Drop a Nick il in the Slot and Get a

Yesterday our old friend Mr. Vox P. Veritas, a life long subscriber to the In-TELLIGENCER, left with us a curiosity in the shape of a well worn but fairly legible copy of the Herculaneum Harry Up, containing an account of the assassina tion of Julius Casar, an event which some of our older citizens may remember. He found it among some old papers left by his father, and to show how sensations were dished up in those days we copy the article entire. It is from the Rome correspondent of the Hurry Up, and appears under the head of "delayed correspondence" and is signed "Gath." The writer, judging from the rambling and excited character of his narrative must have worked under the stimulus of 500 volts of 20 amperes, equal we should say to ton Tusculum cocktails. The account starts off with the abruptness of a cable car or a dynamite bomb, videlicet.

"Dictator C. Julius Casar was assassinated dead to-day, the ides of March. The names of the assassins are known, and although they are beyond the exand although they are beyond the es-carpment, the police are on the trail and hope to run them in before the end of the week.

Never since the days Titus took Jerusalem and Billy Patterson was sandbagged on the Appian Way by a mysterious hand has anything so affected the stock market, Chicago gas dropping from 200 to 60 sesterces. In fact, a large and elegant assortment of gloom, at special fire sale prices, has settled over the eternal city, the vain and vargelous mistress of city, the vain and vargelous mistress. sale prices, has settled over the eternal city, the vain and voracious mistress of the world and the Tenderloin district. The board of aldermen, I am informed, will meet to-morrow for the purpose of offering a reward for the arrest of the assassins and awarding the contract for the new bicycle track around the Colisseum. As the saloons have been closed there is a well defined thirst stalking in the streets at the time I write, but the fire department is held in readiness to quell any outbreak.

But about the corpse, and more anon concerning the trivialities of the tragedy.

quell any outbreak.

But about the corpse, and more anon concerning the trivialities of the tragedy. As your readers well know Casar was a born fighter, and held the championship belt, but like Sullivan he went into the fray once too often, and as a consequence his backer Antony is considerably out. Owing to the confusion that persists in remaining on the scene there are many conflicting reports about the cause of the tragedy that are contradictory, one being that the deed was done by the cowboys of the Pontine marshes, and another that the Dalton gang was mixed up in it. The murder, however, occurred in this wise: Casar, as was his wont every morning, went to the Caria of the capitol to attend to petitions, &c. Just as be had taken his seat a large delegation of congressmen from New York appeared, and Jim Cimber, from the Cohosh district, the spokesman, presented a petition for the pardon of McKane. Casar was much offended at this, and in a tone of pernicious activity, with a slight Buffalo accent, exclaimed, "I'll see you exiled in Tophet first! What in Gravesend on you mean? This is my government, and don't you forget to let that percolate through your Hawaiian memory."

Then Casca Peffer tried the slot ma-ment, and don't you reget to let that percolate through your Hawaiian memory."

Then Casca Peffer tried the slot machine by dropping in the Coxey bond bills, but was repulsed with even more viçor. Then followed a scene that defies description. Casca immediately pressed the button, and the others did the rest. The sudden attack gave Coscar no time to place himself on a war footing, but he fought hard until he saw a cuckoo make a thrust. "Goe whiz, Decimus Voorinees, you too! Aur wicederschen!" Then, buttoning his mackintosh about him, he croaked right at the foot of Pompey's statue, and it was with no dull thud, either. Then the assassins fled. The crime was first discovered by the janitor, who immediately sent in a call for the patrol wagon and Coroner Antony. These are all the facts of the affray your correspondent is able to ascertain at this writing. The Curia presented an avful sirbt, resembling the abattoir of the Chicago stock variet to Louis Chi sight, resembling the abattoir of the Chicago stock yards, the Louis Quinze fresco and the expensive Hoboken dado being literally painted red.

Gore, gore, everywhere, But not the kind to drink.

A call was issued for a caucus to-morrow to decide on a candidate for the vacant dictatorship. From all I can learn Marc Antony, who has a strong pull on Tammany, will be chosen. Strong arguments are made against him, however, many claiming that he frequents the pool rooms too much. M. Tullius Ciccro, a Massachusetts Murwum, on hearing of the assassination.

M. Tullius Ciccro, a Massachusetts Muc-wump, on hearing of the assassination, is said to have exclaimed: "The tyrant is dead, but by the Ahkoond of Swat tyranny still has a pull."

The actual cause of the assassination is still in doubt. About a month ago, at the time of the Lupercalia, or Lubor Day, when the public generally takes a day off, Cesar umpired a game of base ball between the Jupiters and the Minorvas, and was so rank in his de-cisions that the rooters on the sun seats Minoryus, and was so rank in his decisions that the rooters on the sun seats threatened to mob him. Another and much more plausible reason dates from the coup de grace of Cesar in crossing the Rubicon on the Island ferry boat, from which time it was clearly seen that Rome's name eventually would be mud. But Cesar had many warnings of his fate, which he would not heed until the Province of Pennsylvania rolled up a majority of 180,000 against one of his pretors. It was then he consulted the oracles about his safety in going to the Curia on the 15th of March. The oracles said it would not be wise to undertake it until the new line of trolley cars commenced running.

commenced running.
"Why?" Ceear inquired with the curiosity of a vestal virgin.
"Because the secret chickens will not eat," replied the oracles.
"What's the reason?"
"They have no teeth, yer honor."
"Well, then make them into salad and buy a dozen frish ducks," replied imperial Ceear, who on his way home stopped in the base ball pool rooms and bought the short end on every board. board.

The fatal day arrived and still the imperator refused to liston to the warnings of his friends. Postal cards had been coming in at the rate of one thousand a day, and his wife Calpurnia had an eminous dream the night before, that the senate had passed the wilson tariff bill. She had almost persuaded him to remain at home.

"But what excuse can I give for not appearing?" Inquired her husband, "Oh, anything. Say that you are taking the gold cure" and can't mix your drings.

your drinks. "By the tally-ho coach of Pyrchus Go I will, and before night I

"By the tally-ho coach of Pyrrhus, never. Go I will, and before night I will either weara crown or sport wings."

He went, and his subsequent movements are detailed above.

There was something very attractive about Casar in private and public life. He was a scholar, opicureas, philosopher, and good poker player. It was he who gave expression to that famous phrase, 'I went in, I saw, I took the pot.' His publicitude was the admiration of the fair sex, although sad to say he was a sert of Kentucky mushor, distillery fled. Among his best worky, which will live through all posterity, are 'Thorough lass for the Hand Organ,' The Proper Conduct of the Helpful Simian,' and 'How to Serve Spaghetti.' He was a prominent member of the Press Club Bowling Team, and several other minor organizations.

During his inquiries ament the assassination your correspondent had time to interrogate a few of the most prominent citizens on the hauspicious event.

Q. Pedius—"You see it's this way. The other day I heard that lean and hungry slugger Cassius remark. 'Upon what meat does Cosar feed that he hath grown so great.' I knew then there would be some butchering done soon."

M. Sextus—"I thought something would happen when he declared Dolabella out at the home plate on Labor Day. For my part I'd rather be a plain Roman citizen and shoot craps than be an umpire."

From the above masterly expressive

From the above masterly expressive sentiments your readers will gather a fair idea of the place the late Impera-tor occupied in the hearts of his meso-cephalus countrymen. That laid peor C. J. Cassar low.
On the other hand Sallust, a well known sport, tells me that it is all a bluff; that Antony wouldn't go in the ring for less than a stake of 100,000 sesterces with a side bet of 100 gladiators. As the Quirinal Athletic Club can't possibly raise that amount your correspondent is inclined to accept the statement of Sallust as the correct one.

Such were the drastic lines journalists Such were the drastic lines journalists in those times had to work on. Their motto then was the same that it is to-day, viz: "It is a very frigid period of time when I am relegated to the rear," which liberally translated signifies it is a cold day when they get left. And more than this, the article shows that even in those early days the noble art of interviewing was a child of the catacombs.
